METHUSELAH.

He lived nine hundred years and more, till living got to be a bore. He often breathed a weary sigh when he saw hearses going by. "This thing has ceased to be a joke," he used to say; "I'd like to croak. The running mates I used to know went up the flume long, long ago. The enemies I used to hate have kicked their last and pulled their freight. My hopes are dead, my thoughts are glum, and all the world is on the bum; I've had all things that I desired, and e'en the circus makes me tired. I would not walk two blocks to see a dog fight or a slugging bee. The years have doused me in the soup; I really would not give a whoop to see a suffragette parade or have my fill of lemonade. Great whiskers! Every other guy seems able to curl up and die, while-I must live to beat the band-my fate I do not understand. My friends, be thankful when the day has come for you to pass away! There's nothing worse beneath the sky than living when you'd like to die! There's nothing worse than drawing breath when you are suffering for death, when all the world is stale and old, and eyes are weak and hearts are cold, and all your friends are dead and gone-it makes me tired, so help me John!" ### Glenn Brown Addresses Men's Temple Club.

Pictures of the proposed Lincoln Memortal, as set forth in the McMillan, plans, were exhibited last night by Glenn Brown in his lecture given in Eighth Street Temple, under the auspices of the Men's Temple Club. W. E. Sanford spoke ton by planting flowers."

"It is only right that this building should have as dignified a position as the Washington Monument," said Mr. Brown. "The United States owes a fit-ting memorial to Lincoln's memory." Speaking of the beautifying of Wash-ington, Mr. Brown said Washington uses ington, Mr. Brown said Washington uses:
its rivers and streams for dumping places, while foreign countries turned them into beautiful waterways. He painted the deplorable condition of Rock Creek.
W. E. Sanford showed many colored pictures of the improvements that had been made in the beautifying of houses and back yards in Washington by the planting of flowers and trees.
